

Clare Marx Review

Dame Clare Marx review – patient event

I'd like to invite you to an event I'm hosting for patient organisations, groups and individual patients on 18 July, to help inform my UK-wide independent review into how gross negligence manslaughter and culpable homicide are applied to medical practice.

It's really important that my working group and I hear the views of patients, to help us identify how we can ensure investigations are timely, independently, fairly and expertly carried out, and support a just culture, where lessons can be learned.

Venue and time

The event will take place on Wednesday 18 July, between 1pm and 3.30pm, at The Wesley, 81 – 103 Euston Street, London, NW1 2EZ. Please do join us for lunch at 1pm, before we start the session at 1.30pm.

On the day

I'll be joined by Vivienne Parry, who is my lay advisor on my working group. In particular, we'll be looking at some specific scenarios so we can understand more about:

- What people perceive to be 'criminal acts' by doctors
- The experiences of patients and their families during local investigations following a fatal incident

Register your interest today

If you'd like to attend, please follow this link to register your interest. You're also welcome to share this with your colleagues, your members or other individuals you think would be interested. We'll come back to you in two to three days to confirm your attendance and provide an event programme closer to the time.

I very much hope you'll be able to join us – your feedback will provide invaluable evidence to inform my review. If you have any questions or need any information at this stage, please don't hesitate to let me know.

Best wishes

Clare Marx
